LOCAL GOVERNMENT PAY OFFER IS 1% NO STRINGS ATTACHED

Last week the national local government employers sent GMB and the other TUs their 'final' offer for 2013 pay. If accepted this offer would apply to all schools covered by the NJC (Green Book), if you are unsure whether this applies to you, check your contract of employment. The offer is a 1% increase to all pay points and to remove spinal column point 4 (the lowest pay point meaning some 20,000 people would move up to point 5). There are no changes to terms and conditions, that is to say there are no strings. The increase, if accepted, will be applied from 1 April 2013.

The next step is that GMB and the other TUs will consider this offer, and for GMB I can confirm that we will put it to members to vote whether to accept or reject it and I will send out further details in due course.

You may recall that the earlier negotiations had resulted in an offer of either 1% with some detrimental changes to conditions or a lower value offer without changes. Therefore the progress we have made by continuing negotiations has been to remove the detrimental strings and instead add a small improvement for the very lowest paid.

In their offer letter, the national employers make some significant comments about their views on the future of local government national negotiations. They allude to trade union reluctance to negotiate on reform of some Green Book terms and conditions, and say that they believe there is little chance of negotiations on these reforms making any progress in the near future. As a result, they will now consult with councils and regional employers on the future of national negotiations, and encourage local employers to seek changes to national terms and conditions.

I want to be very clear that GMB has at no point failed to engage in negotiations nor have we given any impression other than our total commitment to national negotiations and national conditions, which I know are of particular concern to those of you working in academies which are currently covered by the NJC. I want to be equally clear that any attempt by any employers to break any national conditions will be resisted strongly.

Finally, at this stage I just want to say that although the pay freeze has been broken, it is very disappointing that the offer is only 1%. On average this will equate to about £2.50 a week* for most Support Staff (before tax and pro-rating).

GMB will inform you of the consultative arrangements shortly.
